COMMENTS

1. Need for This bill

According to the author:

Currently addiction counselors are not on the list of legally mandated reporters of elder abuse. This bill would close this reporting mandate gap.

2. Mandated Reporters of Elder Abuse

Mandated reporters are required to report known or suspected cases of physical or financial abuse of elder or dependent adults. These reporters include any person who has assumed full or intermittent responsibility for care or custody of an elder or dependent adult, whether or not that person receives compensation, including administrators, supervisors, and any licensed staff of a public or private facility that provides care or services for elder or dependent adults, or any elder or dependent adult care custodian, or employee of a county adult protective services. Mandated reporters include school teachers or employees, clergy, law enforcement officers, firefighters, and bank employees. Mandated reporters also include a broad range of health care practitioners, including doctors, nurses, psychologists, licensed clinical social workers, marriage and family therapists, and licensed professional clinical counselors.

In order to protect mandated reporters, their identity is kept confidential and a violation of this confidentiality is a misdemeanor. APS can only reveal the names of reporting parties to other investigative agencies. Supervisors and administrators of mandated reporters are not allowed to impede or prohibit reporting. Mandated reporters are also given immunity from civil or criminal liability as a result of any report of known or suspected abuse they make, unless it can be proven that a false report was made and the person knew that the report was false.

This bill adds substance use disorder counselors to the list of mandated reporters. These counselors are very similar to the group of professionals who are already mandated reporters, such as licensed clinical social workers, marriage and family therapists, and licensed professional clinical counselors.
